Letter from the Prez...

It's hard to believe that as I sit here writing this letter the summer has just come to an end. The kids are back at school, traffic is at full force (if you've been on the road lately, you know what I mean...it's ugly out there) and the Club's summer event schedule is a faint memory. Diving, sailing, dining and drinking...ahhh! So many of you attended and supported these events. THANK YOU! Our sailing trips were jam-packed, the dine-a-rounds were filled (we had over 40 people at the Chart House in August), plenty of divers flocked to the boats (gear and all) and at least 50 of you every Friday mobbed the selected bar to kick back and enjoy a cocktail or two. What a wonderful summer it was!

Well, no more diving/snorkeling trips to the keys and the "outer banks" of Miami and no more sailing trip. After a moment or two of nostalgia for the dog days of summer, my attention turns to the exciting events schedule for fall. Now that the sweltering heat of summer is waning, we can move out of the air conditioning, put the tops down on our convertibles, and break out the bike shorts. Yahoo! Fall brings a whole new look to the event schedule for the Club. Besides the ever-exciting Snowballs, which will be on the schedule through the end of the calendar year, and the traditional happy hours and Dine-a-rounds, we have a variety of new activities to wet your appetite. The theater is back. The doors of The Barnacle are open for full moon concerts. Bike rides are on the agenda, and Jazz Harvest 2002 is on the schedule. The only question: how do we fit all of these great activities in our schedule? This particular question is one that haunts me each and every month. In my perfect world, there would be time to travel, attend every event on the schedule, spend time with family, and work (this, of course, is only by necessity and only so that I can afford to attend all of these great events and trips).

Alas, utopia has not quite arrived. Over the last several months I have attended as many events as could possibly fit in my schedule. I was glad to make it to most of the happy hours, one of the dive/snorkel trips and most of the dine-a-rounds. Unfortunately, due to my travel schedule, I was unable to make it to two events that I've desperately wanted to attend: the Broward Happy Hours and the sailing trips. I'm so looking forward to the next Broward Happy Hour. As many of you know, Giorgio's, a beautiful waterfront establishment, is just a hop, skip and a jump from my humble abode. So, I'm very excited to spend the next Friday happy hour scheduled there - which, by all accounts, will be in November. Look for it on your calendar and look for me there. As for the sailing trips, it looks like I missed the boat on this one (yes, I know, a poor attempt at humor) as the sailing trips are on hiatus for a while. I guess I'll have to wait until next season. In the meantime, the fall events will keep me busy. I look forward to seeing all of you at the Snowballs, the happy hours and on the slopes. Think snow!
